MISCELLANEOUS READING. PAIN AND DEATH .- It is a comfort to know SCHIEDAM SCHNAPPS
A SUPERLATIVE

TONIC, DIERETIC, ANTI-DYSPEPTIC, AND INVIGORATING CORDIAL.

WOLFE'S CELEBRATED SCHIEDAM AROMATIC SCHNAPPS should be kept in every Family. It invariably corrects the ill.

Insects may be cut and pulled to pieces without giving any indication of pain. When they lose a leg or two, they go about their business without seeming to mind it at all. Cut a wasp in two, so that his thorax is sec. arated from his stomach and abdomen, and he walks about merrily, and eats with an unusually good appetite. In fact, as his food passes through him at once, it gives him no inconvenience, and he can eat any quantity. The enjoyment does not last very long, because the processes of nutrition cannot go on without the organs of digestion; but Mr. Wasp does not appear to suffer in the least.

Insects, in certain cases, show muscular contortions, but these are not proof of pain .--We know that there may be the most spasmodic action in the human body without the least suffering. Some years ago we knew of a little boy whose lower extremities were thrown into spasms by an injury to the spine. The little fellow had no feeling wh tever to the trade in Bottles. This wine is warranted below the point of injury, and was greatly amused to lie and see himself kick. So, the convulsive spasms of men who are hanged are no proof of pain. When the neck is broken there can be none below the point of ST. CROIX RUM, SCOTCH & IRISH WHISKY. | dislocation. When the neck is not broken, the pressure of blood on the brain produces insensibility almost instantly. All men who have recovered from hanging, after it was supposed that they were dead, give the same testimony to its painlessness. When men
